Choose from Two Program Formats

Part Time – On-campus evening courses with select online courses are offered quarterly. Depending upon your course load, you can complete your certificate in one to five years.

Full Time – Full-time day courses in the Compressed Schedule format allow you to complete the certificate program in approximately three months.

A Program of Distinction

Over the past forty years, our Paralegal Program has earned an outstanding reputation for practice-based education. A balance of workplace applicable skills and legal theory prepares graduates to choose to participate in litigation or transactional practices. Concepts and practical skills are taught and reinforced utilizing case studies, lectures, class discussions, group exercises, assignments, and guest speakers.

Approved by the American Bar Association (ABA), the program meets the most rigorous standards set for paralegal training. The curriculum is reviewed and updated on a continuing basis. As part of the prestigious University of California, Irvine, the curriculum has also been reviewed and approved by campus academic departments.

Built by Experts

Advisory committee members – attorneys and paralegals – evaluate the program content and contribute insight and foresight on industry trends to ensure that the most relevant and timely legal training is offered.

“... were the networking opportunities available through the instructors and program. Through one of my instructors, I was referred and hired by a company for an entry level legal position. Since graduation, I’ve worked my way into a full-time paralegal position.”

- ALEXANDRIA ANDERSON

Continue to Learn
A variety of legal specialties allow you to stay up-to-date on the most current developments in the paralegal field.

Make your Mark
Paralegals serve as a pivotal link between a firm and its clients, the office of opposing counsel, and the court system or other departments outside of the organization. They do just about everything an attorney does except give legal advice, set fees, and represent clients in court. While paralegals may not provide legal services directly to the public except as permitted by law, the typical tasks paralegals do perform include:

- Conducting client interviews and maintaining general contact
- Assisting with case management
- Locating and interviewing witnesses
- Performing investigations and statistical documentary research
- Retrieving and gathering factual information
- Performing legal research and analysis
- Drafting legal documents, correspondence, and pleadings
- Summarizing depositions, testimony, and records; drafting discovery, including interrogatories and responses
- Attending executions of wills, real estate closings, depositions, court or administrative hearings, and trials with the attorney

Choose your Field
One of the most attractive aspects of the paralegal profession is the diversity of potential employment opportunities. With your paralegal certificate, you have the flexibility to go almost anywhere:

- Private law firms
- Government agencies
- Corporations
- Nonprofit organizations
- Advocacy groups
- Court system
- Insurance companies
- Bank trust departments
- Independent contractor services to attorneys and law firms
- And much more

Admission Requirements
To qualify for admission, you must have a bachelor’s degree or an associate of arts or science degree from an accredited post-secondary institution. An associate of applied science degree, or an occupational or vocational degree does not satisfy the educational requirements. You must also submit official college transcripts verifying you meet the admission requirements.

"The knowledge and practical experience the instructors provided has given me an edge in the paralegal space resulting in landing my dream job. The real world assignments feel more like on the job training than coursework." – HEIDI MORROW
