OLLI is dedicated to lifelong learning and I'm learning a lot about this organization. It is my goal to visit each committee to learn about their processes, challenges and members. I thought you might want to be part of this learning experience too. Last month I visited the Science and Math Committee (now keep an open mind!) and here is what I learned.

The Science Committee creates concepts and organizes courses in the physical and biological sciences, astronomy, mathematics, and medicine and in technologies that are likely to affect the lives and interests of OLLI members and their families.

John Bush and George Hume co-chair this committee. According to John, "not only should the relevance of the topics be apparent to our members and the speaker well prepared but the entertainment value of the class is often crucial to its success." John defines the three kinds of OLLI members they are trying to serve:

The aficionados – people who are vitally interested in such topics as string theory, the mathematics of probability, quantum phenomena, nanotechnology, cosmology etc. Classes often are small, sometimes best positioned as discussion groups, but enrollments of 25-50 are fairly common.

We call on UCI faculty whenever we can enlist them. Instructor presentation skills are often less important to the success of the class than is the interest in the topic.

The casual – people who are attracted to topics in science and technology who have some relevant background either from reading or formal education so that they are not intimidated by a little mathematics or use of a technical language. The success of these classes depends more on the presentation skills of the instructor than on the topic itself. Topics with historical or human interest or that are receiving attention in the news are usually attractive.

"I would like to see more OLLI members who are among the intimidated/uninterested attend our Committee meetings, even if they have no intention to become involved on a regular basis in the work of the Committee."

The intimidated/uninterested – people who don't feel that science and technology have immediate relevance to their lives or who have become convinced that they are incapable of understanding science or mathematics. This is of course the hardest group to reach and to hold.

We have no strategy but we try lots of things.

Challenges include:
- Sustaining efforts as key participants age or burn out
- Continually identifying appropriate topics/speakers suited to the OLLI audiences
- Identifying and encouraging UCI faculty members to present courses in the Science and Math field
- Finding more effective strategies to reach out to the intimidated/uninterested

The Science and Math Committee membership is substantial including: John Bush – Chair, George Hume – Co-Chair, Marj Besemer, Dorothea Blaine, Gil Brenner, Gerald Devries, Phil Friedel, Barbara Hamkalo, Jerry Florman, Alison King, Charles Melfi, Gary Oberts, Vern Roohk, Phyllis Scheffler, Dennis Silverman, Carroll Slemaker, Barry Waldman, Larry Wayne, Ron Williams and Steve Wunderly.

John states that "I would like to see more OLLI members who are among the intimidated/uninterested attend our Committee meetings, even if they have no intention to become involved on a regular basis in the work of the Committee."

I would define myself as casual/intimidated in Science and Math. However, I found the committee meeting interesting and the members warm and welcoming. To meet the challenges, new members are essential. If you would like to check out this committee, please contact John Bush, Chair, johnbbush@cox.net, (949) 464-3973.

BUSING TO OLLI
(Letter to the Editor)

As a follow up to President McGovern's letter last month, another tip on traveling by OCTA by a member who has not owned a car in 32 years. To get a better idea of where the stops are between which you might be transferring, search the intersecting streets in Google Maps and zoom in. Bus stops are marked with a white on blue icon. When clicked, the stop number and the next few buses time of arrival appear. Being visually oriented, this helps me know exactly where I'll be getting off bus 1 and where I will be getting on bus 2. If the bus stops appear to be more than across the street apart, you can right-click or control-click one bus stop and select Directions From in the pop-up menu, then repeat on the other bus stop and select Directions To. The default is for driving. But where the two locations are named (usually by geographic coordinates) on the upper left of the page are 4 icons for modes of transportation. If you click the walking figure, you will be given both a distance and an estimated walking time. I am 63 years old and bike and walk a lot, so my times are about half what are listed. My mom is nearly 90 and her times are at least twice what are listed. Work from there.

THE OLLI SUGGESTION BOX

On the front side of the Nametag should be the current year of membership, i.e. Fall 2010 or Spring 2011

#2
Very popular classes should have more than one session planned so that people are not disappointed. More people who don't get into classes they want will not come back. We usually know ahead of time which classes will "sell out", so we should try to get a second class so all are happy. Also, website should not say "class will be repeated next semester", when we know that is not true! Otherwise we create false expectations.

#3
The Nametags should be color-coded to indicate current membership status.

The Suggestion Box is located at the rear of the Onken Classroom. Know that we read and consider the ideas.

ONE-EYED MONSTER?

Nope, just OLLI’s new ceiling-mounted LCD in the Onken Classroom.
LEGACY

As many of you know we received a commitment from the ONKEN family in October 1997 for a gift to support funding for a classroom facility for OLLI at UCI. The legacy gift (to be given after the passing of both the Onkens) was in the form of stock valued at $500,000 in 1997. We want to acknowledge the overwhelming generosity of this original legacy gift from the ONKEN Family and thank them for their foresight and wonderful dedication to the OLLI organization. Further, we recognize their daughter, Ginny Freeman, for her continued devotion to the organization.

You will note that in the Fall 2010 catalog the gift was reported to be near $300,000. This decrease was due to the unpredicted market decline in the past few years. Now that the gift has been transferred to UCI for OLLI to use, it has been set up as an endowment fund. This means that OLLI may receive annual endowment disbursements which can be used to fund the Onken Classroom at Woodbridge.

Again, thank you to the Onkens and to Ginny Freeman for having such great faith in OLLI at UCI and giving such a magnanimous gift that will serve OLLI into the future. We are so grateful.

OLLI LIBRARY GROWS AND GROWS

Why was there such an explosion of creative culture, human ingenuity, economic development and social experimentation in Italy beginning in the 14th century and ending in the middle of the 16th century?

Leading to the Italian Renaissance, why was the Italian peninsula so different from the rest of Europe? For example how did the city-states of Italy manage to develop such sophisticated societies based on various forms of government, with social mobility and secular education, and amass such enormous wealth, when most of the rest of the continent still lived under feudal regimes, largely local economics and clerically dominated culture? Why was Humanism a primarily Italian phenomenon in the 14th century?

The Renaissance gave us so many of the tools by which we still interpret our lives and many of the fundamental ways we see our modern world.

Coming soon to the OLLI library is a three part set of cassettes featuring The Italian Renaissance taught by Professor Kenneth Barlett of the University of Toronto.

OLLI BUS ROLLS ON
You’re never too old to learn something new. That’s the attitude of members of the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI). For the fourth consecutive year, Calit2 offered a series of classes for the mostly retired audience. About 30 students met on Wednesday afternoons in October to learn about technologies for energy independence. In the first session (pictured), UCI researchers explained how they are developing low-cost solar cells from nanomaterials to capture sunlight and turn it into electrical energy.

The second class focused on research efforts to maximize output on fuel cells. New technologies for making coal cleaner and recycling nuclear waste were presented in the third meeting. Calit2 will work with OLLI, which is managed by UCI Extension, to offer a program again next fall.
